It's sprung a leak!

This water tower is leaking, but not on its own, it was shot three times. The Bay St. Louis Police Department is looking for the person or persons who shot the water tower located at Dr. Martin Luther King Park on Washington Street. Det. Woes snag 603 work

BY MARY G. SEILEY
One problem after another has stalled work on four-laning Highway 603, says Southern District Highway Commissioner Ronnie Shows.

And the entire project may end up in court due to the economic stress that delays have caused the contractor, SCI of Gulfport, Shows added.

As it stands, the contractor can't finish work because fly ash is unavailable for the pre-paving mixture of the roadway, Shows said Wednesday.

One of the first major roadblocks the project hit was dispute over responsibility for relocating utility lines that laid in the 603 route. By the time that squabble was resolved and the lines relocated, materials to complete the roadway were not available, Shows said.

Weather also stymied work, he added.

While some work continues on the project, Shows had no estimate for when motorists can expect to be driving on the newly divided highway.

SCI gets reimbursed by the state for completed work segments, the commissioner said. With the delays, the contractor "isn't being compensated because work isn't being done."

Shows said legal action by the contractor against the state is a real possibility. He lauded SCI as a "top notch contractor" which has performed well on other projects for the state elsewhere.

If the project is stalled in court, Shows added, the state would have to look to the bonding company to complete the

Candidates have early deadline

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

An earlier than usual deadline for filing for office faces state and local candidates in 1995.

The deadline for all party nominations in the Aug. 8 primaries and Independent candidates in the Nov. 7 general election have a filing deadline of March 1 at 5 p.m.

The passage of House Bill 1809 by the 1994 Legislature made dramatic changes in the filing dates, which in previous elections were as close as 30 days before.

To be elected will be from governor to constables.

A brochure from the Secretary of the State's office says there are certain basic qualifications common to all offices as specific qualifications for each office.

Those qualifications are:

— Be a qualified elector of the State of Mississippi.

— Never have been convicted of a crime punishable by confinement in the penitentiary (unless the candidate has received a full pardon).

— Never have been convicted of a federal felony or a felony in another state which is considered a felony in Mississippi, after December 22, 1992.

County may see '95 improvements

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors have many plans for the county during the new year.

Hancock County Board President Mike Ladner said they may not be able to get everything done, but they will get as much done as possible.

The board hopes to finish the beach renourishment program and build board walks and parking spaces.

The board has expressed concern in meetings before about residents and tourists in the area having to cross the street to get to the beach and the probability of an accident occurring.

The board also has set the goal of finishing their long-range comprehensive planning program.

A topic of some controversy, but Ladner said is a priority, is developing some type of leash law in the county.

The supervisors have asked Representative Bill Johnson to Lizana man arrested

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

A Lizana Community resident has been arrested for allegedly stealing checks and buying a vehicle with the checks that he stole.

Charles Edward Necaise, Jr., 24, 15234 Cable Bridge Rd., was arrested Wednesday in Harrison County on charges of uttering forgery.

Necaise allegedly stole checks from a Pass Christian resident and wrote checks in Harrison and Hancock Counties and even purchased a vehicle with one of them, Hancock County Sheriff's Department Detective George Burleson said.

Necaise faces charges from the Harrison County Sheriff's Department, Gulfport Police Department and Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Burleson said.

Necaise was transported from Harrison County to Hancock to be charged with the crime and will be returned to Harrison County where he will make bond, Burleson added.

Panels to review shrimp and red snapper management

Advisors to the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council (Council) will review proposals for shrimp and red snapper management in federal waters.

The Shrimp Advisory Panel and Scientific and Statistical Committee (SSC) will meet jointly at the Radisson Inn New Orleans Airport Hotel, 2150 Veterans Memorial Boulevard, Kenner, La. on Jan. 10 and 11 to address and advise on issues the Council will face the following week.

Included are reduction of fish bycatch in shrimp trawls, management of royal red shrimp, review of the 1994 Texas seasonal closure to shrimping, and the recent NMFS biological opinion on impact of shrimping on endangered species.

The latter issue was previously presented to the Council and concerns special requirements to protect endangered sea turtles.

On the afternoon of Jan. 11 at 1 p.m., the SSC will consider recent findings of the reef fish stock assessment on generation time for red snapper and projected impact of various management measures on the 1995 recreational harvest of red snapper.

Shrimp issues are scheduled from 10 a.m. on Tuesday to mid-day Wednesday with that afternoon devoted to red snapper.

The meetings are open to the public and are accessible to people with disabilities.

The Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council is one of eight regional Fishery Management Councils which were established by the Magnuson recently were given copies of the city's zoning ordinance.

Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976. The Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council prepares fishery management plans which are designed to manage fishery resources in the 200-mile limit in the Gulf of Mexico.

One item on the agenda was set aside when the commissioners asked the applicant to rethink plans for adding onto a building at 406 Easterbrook Street. If the project is redesigned as suggested, officials said the applicant may not need a variance to proceed.

In the second matter, concerning a variance for side yard and rear yard setback requirements at 350 Easterbrook, the commission asked for more time to study densities of other nearby properties.

The last item on the agenda, concerning two structures at 433 Thomas Street, is a hold-over issue. Based on a commission recommendation last month, City Council agreed to let the property owner subdivide his lot into two parcels.

But the owner needs a variance before proceeding, due to substandard size of the two new lots that would be created.

City officials say the property owner obtained a building permit several years ago to construct a guest house on a lot already containing a primary residence.

The owner now wants to sell his properties as two residences, officials say.

Les Fillingame, a city official who until recently served as commission chairman, said Wednesday that 14 of 20 residential lots on the block are smaller than what's being requested at 433 Thomas.

But, Fillingame said, the city doesn't want property owners to think the city zoning ordinance has a "loophole" to allow similar subdivisions of guest houses from main properties in the future.

A relative of the applicant said her brother lives offshore most of the time, and built the guest house to live in when in town. The main structure, she said, is rental property.

City Councilman Tad Black told the commission the applicant has stated he's in no hurry to resolve the matter. He suggested the commission study the situation further before making a recommendation to council.

Commissioners agreed they needed more time to study the issues and ramifications of the case.

New commissioners at Wednesday's meeting included Maurice Singleton Jr., Elaine La Fontaine, Jim Louis and Melony Mitchell. Linda Beauregard, reappointed to a new term, acted as chairman of the commission. Other reappointees, David Bassett and Tommy Chapman, were not at Wednesday's meeting.

help them, through the legislature, to change the law so that a county-wide law would not have to be passed and the law could be placed only in certain areas of the county.

There are also building plans in the works.

The supervisors will be looking at the possibility of building a new school superintendent's office, a new library in north Hancock County, a marina for sports and commercial fishermen and more office space for the Justice Court building and a covered horse arena.

Other projects that are being looked at are working with the Hancock County Humane Society to provide better facilities for the animals of the county, better recreational facilities, overlay the walking track at the hospital and the possibility of upgrading or building a new courthouse, along with bringing the courthouse up to A.D.A. requirements.

County-wide improvements the supervisors are aiming for, Ladner said, is to improve economic development, complete sewerage throughout the county, establish a progressive program for better drainage and to hard-surface more roads in the county.

Ladner also said plans are underway to develop Stennis International Airport, pick up trash as well as garbage in the county and finding a place to house juvenile offenders.

He also said the supervisors want to better inform the public of what has taken place in the county in the past seven years.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

A large number of bills have already been filed in the Mississippi House with a lot more to go.

Representative J.P. Compretta told me Friday morning some 700 bills have already been filed in the House. He estimates there should be about 3,000 bills filed in this session in the House and Senate.

Compretta did tell me that each week he will bring a copy of the short title of the bills filed and place them at the library.

If anyone is interested in a particular bill, J.P. said they may contact him, and he will get them a complete copy of it.

What happens, in many cases, in Jackson has a direct effect on us eventually, so all residents should keep themselves informed of the happenings at the Capitol.

We also try to run a summary each week on the House and Senate on this page of the newspaper to help readers stay abreast of happenings.

An interesting event is to take place starting at 9 a.m. next Saturday at the St. Stanislaus gym.

It will be the second annual Bay-Waveland Elks Hoop Shoot, a free-throw basketball contest.

There will be boys and girls brackets, ages 8-9, 10-11 and 12-13.

PE teachers at both public and private schools are to present teams in each age group after tryouts.

Sounds like it is going to be an interesting contest. For further information call 466-2900 and leave a message.

I did not like the very cold temperatures we had Wednesday and Thursday and was sure glad to get the warm-up on Friday.

In viewing national weather conditions, we are really very lucky we are not having weather as bad as other sections of the country.

I received a fax message from one of my Waveland friends who has been vacationing in Colorado this week. He said temperatures have been in the single digits and not going above freezing each day.

Those 'Eskimos' can keep that type of weather. Most of the time is good to live in South Mississippi. We do have favorable weather most of the time.

Our days are getting longer, and I am glad to see that change taking place.

It seems there just isn't enough daylight in the winter months to do everything I would like to do, especially outside.

By the time I get home from work it is already dark most evenings.

But, I do have to look forward to those longer days, as they increase a few minutes each week.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI SENATE

By Senator Bill Johnson

A weekly update of the 1995 Legislative Session

The first order of business as the Senate began the 1995 Legislative Session was the swearing in of its two newest members. Jan. 4 Senator Bill Hawks of Hernando and Senator Alan Nunnelee of Tupelo took their oaths of office.

Hawks replaces George Ready, who won a circuit judgeship in north Mississippi, and Nunnelee follows Roger Wickler, who was elected to Congress to represent Mississippi's First District.

The Senate also took action on nine bills vetoed by the Governor by referring them back to their respective committees for a decision on any future action. Nearly 800 bills and resolutions have already been introduced with the first deadline just a week away.

Requests for general bills and constitutional amendments are scheduled to be drafted by Friday, Jan. 13.

Other activities during the initial week included the announcement of new committee chairmen and some changes in committee assignments, directing bills to committees, and a briefing on the state's financial condition. I was appointed to serve on the Highways and Transportation Committee.

Legislators also saw history in the making as they attended the swearing-in ceremonies for Mississippi's first ten judges elected to the new Court of Appeals, which included our Judge Thomas.

Through legislation passed in 1993, the court was created to assist Mississippi's Supreme Court and handle appeals in a more timely manner from the state's lower courts. The old Supreme Court Chamber at the New Capitol served as the backdrop for the newest judges taking the oaths of office and receiving their robes.

Lawmakers returned to Jackson to find continued improvement in the state's economy and revenue collections above original estimates.

Mississippi's budget surplus has become a hot topic among lawmakers and the focal point of proposed legislation. The Legislative Budget Revenue Committee reported its yearly estimates and believes the state will end its fiscal year on June 30, 1995 with nearly $128 million in the General Fund.

Crime, prisons, Medicaid, Taxes, education, term limits, tourism and state finances are just a few of the issues of priority in the 1995 Regular Session. Committees are already hard at work to discuss and debate the issues that will result in new laws for the people of Mississippi. 1995 is the final regular session of the current four-year term of office.

With a hectic schedule ahead, senators gladly took the opportunity during their first week to recognize and honor several award-winning teachers from around the state, including Mary K. Deen of the Waveland-Bay St. Louis District and Suzanne Burton from the Hancock County Schools.

Resolutions were passed to commend Mississippi's Master Teachers, Teacher of the Year, Parent of the Year, National Science Foundation Presidential Award winners for Excellence in Science and Mathematics Teaching and the 1994 Milken Family Foundation National Educator Award recipients.

The '95 session looks to be one of great interest to every Mississippian as the state continues to follow the upward trend it is presently experiencing.

During the 1995 Session I may be reached at P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215 or by calling 359-3232.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

By Representative J.P. Compretta

The 1995 legislative session has gotten off to a swift start with money matters, prison needs, and education issues attracting a lot of early attention in the House of Representatives.

Copies of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee's recommendations were placed on legislators' desks shortly before the opening gavels were rapped Tuesday, Jan. 3 in the House of Senate. The 693-page volume also includes the Governor's budget proposals for the fiscal year starting in July 1, along with a new section providing detailed facts and figures from departments and agencies to assist lawmakers in measuring actual performance in various programs.

The performance data is among several requirements recently established by the Legislature as part of a continuing effort to ensure more accountability in government and get a better grip on state spending. The widely acclaimed "98 percent rule" also remains in effect in this year's budgetary process.

Initially adopted in the 1992 session, the 98 percent rule is designed to provide more financial stability and better management of taxpayers' dollars by limiting expenditures from the state's General Fund to not more than 98 percent of projected revenues. This leaves a 2 percent cushion to go into a rainy day fund known as the Working Cash/Stabilization Reserve Fund, or into the Education Enhancement Fund created in 1992 to aid local school districts and bolster other educational programs.

In addition to financial matters, top issues in 1995 are expected to include crime and corrections, economic development, education, Medicaid funding, possible tax cuts, and a proposed constitutional amendment to limit the terms of state and local officials, both elected and appointed.

A total of 507 bills and resolutions were dropped in the House hopper on the opening day and the number continues to grow. More than 3,000 bills and resolutions are expected to be introduced in both House and Senate before the 90-day session comes to an end in early April. The deadline is Monday, Jan. 16 for introduction of general bills and constitutional amendments.

The Governor was expected to go before a joint session of the House and Senate on Tuesday, Jan. 10, to give his State-of-the-State address and present his 1995 legislative agenda.

Education is expected to be a top legislative priority as it has been in past years. Dr. Tom Burnham, the State Superintendent of Education, met with the Education Committee to discuss teachers' salaries, the new Tech-Prep program and other education matters.

The Legislature has approved back-to-back pay raises for teachers the past two sessions, but educators say Mississippi still ranks 50th in the nation in average salaries for teachers and Burnham said a teacher shortage exists in many parts of the state.

He said higher salaries would encourage experienced teachers to remain in the classroom and help attract new teachers into the profession. An increase in teachers' salaries is among the main recommendations by the State Board of Education for the 1995 session.

Interim Corrections Commissioner Stu Murphy and other state prison officials went before the House Penitentiary Committee to submit legislative proposals and review the status of various prison construction projects approved during the special session in August.

New housing facilities for more than 4,000 inmates were authorized by lawmakers under a tough-on-crime construction program last year. Murphy said architectural contracts had been approved for new or expanded units to be located at the existing state prisons in Rankin and Green counties, and privately operated facilities are scheduled to be built this year in Leflore and Marshall counties.

By the end of the year, corrections officials said the state is expected to have an authorized capacity for a total of 12,430 prisoners, but Murphy cautioned the prison population continues to increase. He added the state needs immediate space for about 1,000 inmates still being held in county jails.

In other development during the past week, a Constitution subcommittee approved a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow the Legislature to pass a law permitting the use of caning and other forms of corporal punishment in criminal cases.

If the proposal gains final legislative approval, it would give the voters an opportunity to decide this fall if they want to authorize caning or other types of corporal punishment. The legislation was awaiting consideration by the full Constitution Committee as the opening week of the session ended.

A report on long-term growth and investment in the tourism industry was presented to a joint meeting of the House Ways and Means Committee and Senate Finance Committee; a critical evaluation of Mississippi's assistant reading instructor program was released by the legislative PEER Committee; and an update was given to the House Insurance Committee regarding dramatic improvements in the workers' compensation program since passage of a far-reaching workers' compensation reform act in the 1992 legislative session.

Legislatures received a detailed presentation on the state's financial outlook for the coming year from fiscal specialists. Generally, state revenues are exceeding revised projections for the present fiscal year and the economy remains strong, but economists said the rate of growth may be somewhat slower in 1995 than last year.

A list of all the bills introduced in the House during the first week in the Session can be found at the City-County Library on Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis.

If anyone has any questions, comments or needs any information concerning upcoming legislative matters, I can be contacted at the Capitol in Jackson or in Bay St. Louis. Jackson—(601) 359-3326, P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215-1018. Bay St. Louis—467-6515, P.O. Box 128, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520-0128.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial From Mississippi Economic Council

Mississippi must prepare well for next century

1995 marks more than a new year. It marks the beginning of an important transition from the 20th Century to the 21st Century.

Will Mississippi be ready for this new era, or will the state stumble and stammer into the next century just as it did when it made the transition into the 20th Century nearly 100 years ago?

In order to provide a blueprint for a prosperous transition, the Mississippi Economic Council is building the Mississippi Business Agenda—a comprehensive plan of action for the 1995 election year and for legislative sessions through the end of the century.

The Agenda is being prepared through surveys of business leaders and regional MEC meetings throughout the state during the week of Jan. 16-20.

At the meetings, business men and women will be addressing issues concerning government growth, criminal justice, taxation, health care, education, alternative forms of government, tort reform and property rights.

BREWER'S WORLD

By Jimmie Brewer

My Dad's valium never kicked in Good morning all you Southerners down there in the mighty land of Mississippi. This week's column is coming to you from way up north in Missouri. If you dudes and dudettes want to know what the weather is like up here, take a bath, and without drying off jump into your deep freezer and twiddle your thumbs for six and one-half hours. It's COOOOLD!

Believe me, I'm not here by choice. A couple of frantic phone calls from siblings Tuesday morning revealed that my Dad's steady diet of cold wieners and three-day-old chili had finally caught up with him. Apparently, sometime Monday night his heart decided to take an unannounced leave of absence, which resulted in a minor heart attack.

After a 14-hour drive, I arrived at the hospital just after they wheeled him through the mechanical doors that say "Authorized Persons Only." Looking as much like an "authorized person" as I could, I scrambled through the doors and spotted Pa in a little cubby hole. He was waiting for one of those tests where the doctors guide what looks like some fishing line up around the heart to check for blockages.

Looking very much alive, but slightly pale and very scared, Dad wanted to make sure that the attending nurse knew the valium she had given him had not "kicked in." In fact, to the best of my knowledge, during the remainder of the morning he told roughly one-half of the 4,495 staff members at the hospital that the valium was not working.

Finally, the test was administered, and eventually Dad made it back to the room mumbling something about Budweiser, cigars and valium.

Based on the results, it was determined that a small piece of a cold wiener became lodged in a secondary artery, causing a 100 percent blockage in the tiny vein. This, combined with the fact that his favorite college basketball team was down by six points with two minutes to go in the game, caused the attack.

The doctors' prognosis was excellent, and as the Brewer family celebrated in Room 308, we noticed our Dad was starting to look a bit like Kermit the Frog and was slurring a little like Elmer Fudd. In no time at all, and still claiming the valium never kicked in, he had us kids laughing our heads off. It is a funny sight to see a 64-year-old dude higher than a kite.

Dad's recovery will require a light change in his lifestyle, but after contacting virtually every doctor in the Western Hemisphere, he finally located one on the tiny island of Grenada who claims that an occasional cigar, Budweiser and certain types of pizza would not hurt him. However, cold wieners are definitely out.

Praise for do-gooders this week goes out to all the fine folks in the medical field around this country who routinely perform miracles.

Task Force makes several drug arrests

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

Hancock County Task Force Agent Terry Eley reports two arrests were made for the possession of crack cocaine on New Year's Eve.

Arrested were Robert Lee Hatter, 28, 402-C Kellar St., Bay St. Louis; and Lisa R. Hatter, 35, same address. Both were arrested at their residence and charged with possession of crack cocaine and drug paraphernalia, Eley said.

On Tuesday, Jan. 3, one juvenile was arrested along with Stacy C. Ladner, 24, 29138 Sixteenth Section, Pass Christian, for delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine, Eley said.

The arrest of Ladner and the juvenile was made in the Diamondhead community.

Bond for Mr. and Mrs. Hatter was $5,500 each; and that of Ladner and the juvenile was $2,000 each.

The juvenile had to post bond because of the nature of the crime and is being charged as an adult, Eley said.

Assisting in the arrests in the Bay were Detective Kurt Ramon and Patrolman Carl Aderer.

Officers E. J. Favre, Travis Foreman, Paul Denham, and K-9 Buddy and handler Jim Martin assisted in the Bay St. Louis arrests. Eley is handling the cases.

Also arrested was Pat C. Travirca, 21, 1600 Hart Lane, Kiln. She is charged with two counts of sales of a controlled substance and one count of a fraudulent substance, Eley said.

Travirca was arrested on January 3 when she turned herself in at the Hancock County Sheriff's office. Bond was set at $10,500 with Task Force Agent Matt Karl as the arresting officer.

Travirca was one of those to whom a warrant was issued during Operation Tora conducted December 7.

Edward Brian Moore, 22, 236 Marcus St., Waveland, was charged with the sale of a controlled substance and conspiracy to sell Thursday, Jan 5, Eley said.

Moore was arrested by Task Force Agent David Stepro.

Another chance to sign up for Medicare

"If you're age 65 or older and don't have Part B Medicare coverage, you'll have a chance to sign up for the coverage during the 1995 annual enrollment period," said Caril V. Stephens, Social Security manager in Gulfport.

Stephens said every year the government offers a three-month general enrollment period from Jan. 1 to March 31. This period is to give you a second chance if you didn't enroll when you were first eligible or you dropped your coverage. If you enroll during the current sign-up period, your coverage will begin July 1, 1995.

For 1995 the cost for Part B coverage is $46.10 per month. Most beneficiaries who delay enrollment pay a 10 percent surcharge for every 12 months they could have been enrolled but weren't.

Part B coverage, also called "medical insurance," helps pay for doctors' care, outpatient hospital visits and other medical services.

People are offered the option of signing up for Part B at the same time they are automatically enrolled in Medicare's Part A program. Part A helps pay for inpatient hospital care and certain other services and is paid for by the Medicare tax you paid while working.

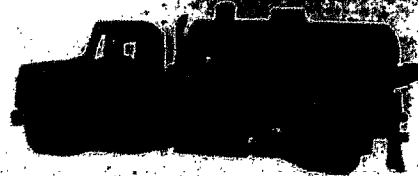

People who want to sign up for Part B Medicare coverage should call the Gulfport Social Security office or call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213 between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. any business day. "The lines are busiest early in the week and early in the month, so it's best to call other times," said Stephens.

Love comes in all sizes ...

The animals you see here are orphans and are available for adoption now. Unfortunately, some of them are the product of irresponsible pet ownership, which results in pet overpopulation. Others are cruelly abandoned and left to fend for themselves in a hostile, dangerous and sometimes fatal environment. While, some had owners who simply were no longer able to give them adequate care.

The animals you see here are the lucky ones! Thanks to these merchant sponsors, they have an opportunity to be adopted by you, or else they face euthanasia. If you have room in your heart for a new friend, please give one of these loveable pets a place to call home.

The Waveland Animal Shelter, located on Gulfside Drive, next to the fire station, has many cats, dogs, kittens and puppies available for adoption.

Please be kind to animals and remember to thank these concerned businesses for caring. If you are interested in adopting one of these pets, or wish to make a severely needed donation to the shelter, please call Nancy at 467-0230 for more information.

Will you help stop this senseless slaughter?

You're looking at a killer. It's a gill net. There are forty miles of gill nets being used on the Mississippi Gulf Coast today. These nets won't stop killing fish until the last fish is caught. Unless we do something to ban the nets.

Gill Nets -- Deadly, Effective, and Illegal Elsewhere

Gill-nets are usually set to catch mullet, valuable because their eggs, or 'roe', are in big demand in oriental markets. It's bad enough that processors strip out the roe and discard the mullet flesh or use it as crab bait. But, once these gill nets are put in the water, they blindly dispense death.

Tens of thousands of speckled trout and redfish die in gill-nets each year. Marine birds, attracted to the nets, are often

Here's what National Fisherman, the leading trade publication for the commercial fishing industry has to say about gill net fishing:

"It is cheap and deadly, and so effective that it has been made illegal in many places."

fatally entangled. And, sadly, cases of our beloved Atlantic Bottlenose Dolphin drowning in these nets are well documented.

Here in the South, gill nets are illegal in Texas, South Carolina and Georgia. Just recently, 72% of the citizens of Florida voted to ban gill nets from their waters. Alabama and Louisiana are expected to ban the nets this year. So, will Mississippi be the target for the 1,000 miles of Florida gill-nets the voters put out of business? For the sake of our children, let's hope not.

Is this an end to commercial fishing?
No one wants to ban commercial fishing. Just the deadly gill nets. Very few of the fish on local menus and in local markets are caught by gill nets. Other forms of commercial fishing, such as commercial hook-and-line fishing, are much more selective and much less impactful. They lend themselves to regulation and management. The mass slaughter you get with gill nets simply cannot be managed. Banning the nets is the only choice.

The 164 people using gillnets say they have a right to make a living. We can sympathize with them. But we cannot allow the needs of 164 gillnetters to destroy a resource that belongs to all Mississippians.

On Wednesday, January 11, you can do something about it.

The Harrison County Board of Supervisors and the City Councils of Ocean Springs, Biloxi, Gulfport, Long Beach, Pass Christian, and Bay St. Louis have all passed resolutions backing the ban on nets. But you're probably wondering what you can do.

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMR) will hold a final public hearing on Wednesday, January 11, at 6 p.m. at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum. The DMR has the power to ban the nets. You can be sure the commercial fishing interests will be there in force. Make sure you are there, and help stop gillnets from slaughtering our sealife.

Boggs signing

Bookends Bookstore will host former Congresswoman Lindy Boggs Wednesday, Jan. 11 from 7-8:30 p.m. She will autograph her book Washington Through a Purple Veil. IRS spells out earned income tax credit

The Internal Revenue Service announced an outreach effort to inform certain individuals of a new tax credit. The Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) has been in existence since the mid-1970s.

However, recent legislation has extended this credit to a few group of taxpayers — those without children. Previously the only way an individual could qualify for the credit was to have a "qualifying child."

The Earned Income Tax Credit is "refundable." The IRS says that means someone whose earnings are so low that they don't owe any income tax can still claim the credit and get a check from the government.

You qualify for the credit in 1994:

- If you have no children, worked and earned less than $9,000, were at least 25 but less than 65 years old, and were not someone else's dependent;

- If you worked; had at least one child living with you for more than half the year; and your income was less than $23,755 with one child (or less than $25,296 with two or more children).

The IRS cautions taxpayers to insure they meet these qualifications before filing a return to claim the credit. The IRS also emphasizes the need to make sure your tax return shows the correct social security numbers for both yourself and your children. According to the IRS, the maximum credit could be worth up to:

- $2,038 if you have one child;
- $2,528 if you have two or more children; or
- $306 if you have no qualifying children

The IRS also announced that taxpayers and employers are encouraged to take advantage of another option. Instead of waiting to the end of the year to receive the money as a refund, qualified taxpayers can choose to get the money in advance and receive part of the credit in each paycheck. This is called the Advance Earned Income Tax Credit.

Those who meet the requirements just file Form W-5, "Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificate," with their employer. However, those who get the advance EITC in their paychecks must still file a tax return at the end of the year to report the amount advanced and claim any remaining credit as a lump sum.

Apples for education

Bismuth-tin shot legal

Sportsmen now have alternative ammo for hunting waterfowl. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has approved bismuth-tin shot for use in hunting waterfowl for the remainder of the 1994-95 hunting season. Bismuth-tin will be an alternative to steel shot, until now the only legal shot for waterfowl hunting. Tests conducted by the service have shown that bismuth-tin is non-toxic, meaning it will not have an adverse effect on waterfowl if digested into their system. The Bismuth Cartridge Company of Dallas says bismuth shot is formed from an alloy composed of 97 percent bismuth and 3 percent tin. They claim it is very similar to lead in density and softer than steel. Service officials say bismuth is the first alternative to pass toxicity tests since steel. Approval of bismuth shot is conditional until the end of this hunting season when further tests can be run.

Bearcats foiled SSC

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaw soccer team lost a tight game to the Long Beach Bearcats 3-2 at Lance Lumpkin field in Long Beach. Late in the second half, B.J. Davis scored the winning goal for the Bearcats by lofting a shot just above the outstretched arms of SSC goalkeeper David Matheson. Long Beach scored first with Timmy Brown's goal four minutes into the first half. Not two minutes later, SSC's Brooks Quinlan headed a ball into the Bearcat net and the score was tied 1-1. Mike Phillips gave Long Beach the lead back about halfway through the first half. The score was then 2-1. However, SSC battled right back and Brad Cannon scored for SSC and the game was tied 2-2. SSC fell to 12-5 overall and 3-3 in the division.
